

QUARTERLY MARKET REVIEW

Volatility began to significantly increase on October 4 and the VIX maintained generally high levels for the remainder of the year. At the beginning of the quarter, we witnessed significant dispersion in sector returns as investors fled the momentum driven sectors that had led performance for much of 2018.

Despite higher interest rates for much of the year, the upheaval in the final quarter brought high quality bonds back to an approximately zero return for 2018. While Growth and Large-Cap stocks experienced a poor quarter, they maintained their relative leadership for the year. In contrast, Emerging Debt and Equity, despite a relatively positive fourth quarter, remained laggards for the year.

Consistent with the fourth quarter, Quality style factors dominated their Low Quality counterparts by wide margins.

The US managed to maintain leadership among developed countries despite being the worst performer in Q4. Similarly, Technology and Healthcare were dominant for the year despite significant weakness later.

STRATEGY REVIEW

For the fourth quarter of 2018 the Select 20 Growth Portfolio outperformed its benchmark, the Russell 3000 Growth Index. While performance was largely driven by our stock exposure, on a sector level, information technology was the largest contributor and industrials the largest detractor from performance.

Contributors

TripAdvisor Inc., a travel website providing travel advice and planning features, was a contributor to performance during the quarter. The company announced third quarter earnings and has seen its stock price appreciate since. Revenue per hotel shopper grew 5% and the company has seen revenue growth accelerate in its key Non-Hotel offerings. Additionally, Hotel adjusted EBITDA and Total Adjusted EBITDA grew 94% and 54% respectively. Management stated they are on track to deliver strong profit growth in 2018 and the business is well-positioned heading into 2019. We continue to believe TripAdvisor is an undervalued asset due to its ability to attract significant numbers of interested travelers and that the company is worth more than recognized at the current valuation.

CME Group Inc., the financial market company operating options and futures exchanges, was a contributor to performance during the quarter. The stock has performed well since the company announced earnings, showing an improving quarter of strong volumes driven by increased volatility in interest rate, equities and metals product lines. The company remains well positioned to benefit from increased trading volumes as a result of increasing volatility rather than the strength of any given market. The CME Group is a platform company with a natural monopoly in many of its futures and clearing products. The business is highly cash generative with low capital spending requirements. Furthermore, we believe there are multiple regulatory and structural changes that are creating favorable growth conditions for the CME Group.

Intercontinental Exchange, Inc., an exchange and clearing house for financial and commodity markets, was a contributor to performance during the period. The company announced third quarter earnings, growing revenues and earnings, achieving record operating cash flows while returning nearly $1.5bn to shareholders, more than any full year in their history. We believe that ICE will benefit from the increasing demand for trading transparency both from market participants and from legislators. Additionally, we believe management is smart about finding and executing on accretive acquisitions, yet savvy enough to walk away from opportunities that put shareholder value at risk.

Detractors

FedEx Corporation, a transportation, e-commerce and business services company, was a detractor from performance during the quarter. The stock has lagged after the company announced disappointing earnings guidance due to international weakness. Additionally, the increasing threat posed by Amazon Air to FedEx's competitive position has been an overhang on the stock as analysts predict the negative impact to the company's revenue and margins over the long-term. That said, we continue to believe that FedEx has a strong competitive position as one of the few delivery and logistics players with both scale and scope. The company's recent large capital investment, we believe, has set the stage for enhancements of yields and profitability which can scale significantly across large volumes. Finally, we think industry capacity dynamics are setting up for improving prices and better margins for the industry, overall.

Liberty Global Plc, an international telecommunications and diversified cable company, was a detractor from performance during the quarter. The European Commission has opened an in-depth investigation into Vodafone's acquisition of Liberty Global's businesses in the Czech Republic, Germany, Hungary and Romania. While we believe this deal will be economically accretive, the duration of the approval process and the unknown use of proceeds has created short term uncertainty and pressured the stock. We do not believe this pressure will persist and continue to believe that Liberty Global has an advantaged network with sustainable pricing power in an industry that continues to consolidate.

LiveRamp Holdings, Inc., a global technology and enablement services company, was a detractor from performance during the period. After strong year-to-date performance, we believe recent weakness can be explained by investors realizing gains as 2018 draws to a close. That said, during the month the company accepted the purchase of 11.2mm shares of its common stock at a price of $44.50 per share as a result of a Dutch tender auction. We continue to believe that LiveRamp is an undervalued name in the market, with new, dynamic management and with large cash reserves which should position the company to drive value over the long-term.

MARKET OUTLOOK

After significant positive absolute returns in the equity market over the past several years, sporadic volatility emerged during 2018. The volatility appeared to be both technical and fundamental, leaving investors continuing to struggle with accurately predicting the pace of global economic activity and assessing external factors that threaten economic fundamentals, such as central bank actions and fiscal policy debates across the globe. During the fourth quarter, the equity markets reflected such uncertainty, resulting in a significant correction. Previous market corrections over the past several years tended to be relatively quick, only to reverse before getting to any material level of investor risk aversion. As the 2019 year begins, investors are focused on the interplay between technical and fundamental factors to determine whether the long, post-financial crisis economic and equity market recovery has come to an end or whether the recent sell off will prove to be transitory.

Adding to investor uncertainty is President Trump's unconventional style as a head of state and various controversies surrounding his administration that may hamper significant policy change. In the short term, we are mindful of the potential macroeconomic implications of Trump policy shifts, e.g. economic growth, higher corporate and personal incomes from lower tax rates, etc. In recent months, President Trump's comments and public positioning on global trade has created more investor concerns about how a potential global trade war might impact the pace of economic growth. We believe it is too early to determine the long term magnitude of such outcomes but we will closely monitor President Trump's tenure with a keen eye on the execution of significant policy shifts.

Nonetheless, regardless of policy outcomes and of oscillating investor sentiment in any given period, we remain consistent in our long-term investment philosophy:

We want to own what we view as strong secular-growth companies with solid business models and competitive positions that we believe can grow market share and have the potential to deliver shareholder value in a variety of market environments.

Mutual Fund investing involves risk. Principal loss is possible. The Fund is non-diversified, meaning it may concentrate its assets in fewer individual holdings than a diversified fund. Therefore, the Fund is more exposed to individual stock volatility than a diversified fund. Small- and Mid-capitalization companies tend to have limited liquidity and greater price volatility than large-capitalization companies. The Fund invests in foreign securities which involve greater volatility and political, economic and currency risks and differences in accounting methods. These risks are greater in emerging and frontier markets. Investments in Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) involve additional risks such as declines in the value of real estate and increased susceptibility to adverse economic or regulatory developments.
